

He Huang, M.D., Ph.D., is the Distinguished Professor and Associate Dean of Zhejiang University School of Medicine; Director of Bone Marrow Transplantation Center of The First Affiliated Hospital, Zhejiang University School of Medicine, and Director of the Institute of Hematology, Zhejiang University. He is also the Vice Chairman of Transplantation committee of Chinese Hematological Association; Vice Chairman of Experts Committee of Chinese Marrow Donor Program; Member of Executive Committee, Asia-Pacific Bone Marrow Transplantation Group (APBMT). Dr. Huang specializes in hematopoietic stem cell transplantation and hematology in clinic. He also focus on hematological molecular biology, cellular immunotherapy and stem cell biology research. He has been in charge of more than 25 research programs including National major scientific research program (973 program), National High Technology Research and Development Program of China (863 program) and the key project of National Natural Science Foundation of China. As corresponding author, he has published 92 original papers in peer-reviewed, SCI-cited journals. He has been awarded 16 national invention patents. During the past years, the research results of his group have been presented as invited and oral presentations for 56 times at the international Conferences. He also organized APBMT annual meetings in 2005 and 2014 in Hangzhou, China as the chairman of the conferences. For his outstanding achievement on hematopoietic stem cell transplantation, Dr. Huang was awarded the national prizes by State Council twice in 2003 and 2015, respectively.